Perrible Double Blurder at Acoutneyville-A Man and Wife Butchered-Arrest of the Sespected Marderer-He Doclares His Inne-cence-Particulars of the Affair. Windows, Vt., July 28, 1867.

bur community has just been aroused by the perpetra-n of a most brutal murder near a small village four les south of here, called Asoutneyville, from small nat whose base it lies. I have just returned and two children, a son eighteen and a daughter an years of age. The discoverer of the deed man named Hitchcock, who reports that receded to the bouse of the Gowans are o'clock this morning, to assist the farmer at ring. Discovering no signs of life about the premium.

daughter, who had apparently just awakened from sleep. The was questioned, and stated that she was awakened in the night by some man calling to her father from the highten; that he had asked who wasted him, and was answered "Hitchcock," and the voice added, "get up; the catile are in the corn;" that thereupon her father area, dressed and went out, and she heard nothing more until aroused by the sound of blows delivered upon the bed with a heavy instrument. The girl was herself occupying a low trundlebed at the foot of and partly underneath that of her parents.) She was now overcome by fright, and lay perfectly quiet until the murderer, having accomplished his purposes in part, endeavored to open the door of a small closet at the foot of the recess occupied by the two beds. In doing this he found it necessary to push the trundle-bed under the other, and the girl crapt over the side, and remembers nothing more until awakened by the discoverer of the crime.

The son slept on the second floor. I endeavored to geen some information from him, but he answered only by a guttural exclamation and an idiotic laugh. My first conviction was that his brain had been turned by the fearful circumstances in which he was placed; but I learned subsequently that he is a witless, half-dazed speature, and has never possessed ordinary intelligence. The girl, his sister, is more intelligent, but hardly of sound mind. The intellectual desability of both is, no doubt, attributable to the fact that their parents were counter.

sound mind. The interlectual deability of both is, no south, attributable to the fact that their parents were cousins.

With regard to the identification of the murderer, the girl is positive that the voice which called her father out was that of a former workman. This man was arrested in Wineser this merning, and is now in the Sherid's eastedy at Ascutneygille. He is a stoutish, ordinary looking fellow, and asserts that he is innocent, and takes the whole afiair with the utmost coolness. He secounts for his presence here by saying that he came from White River Junciston is few stations north on the midnight train, which he loft at Long Bridge, near Assemt white River Junciston is few stations north on the midnight train, which he loft at Long Bridge, near Assumential, which he loft at Long Bridge, near Assumential, but there o'clock, and proceeded to a ards Windsor in search of work; that he reached the farm of a Mr. Davis, two miles below here, who did not remire his services, but advised him to apply at a farm further north, where Mr. Davis thought he might get asspotyment. Mr. Davis corroborates that part of the statement in which he is concerned. No further facts were elicited at the inquest.

The object of the murder was, undoubtedly, plunder, in the best room of the farmhouse the drawers of a bursan were found each demolished in front by the blows of an arc, and apparently well searched. On removing the corpes of the mother and the bods whereon she lay, there were discovered between the ticks $400 in United States bonds, from which the coupons had been clipped as they came due, and $150 in currency. The peasession of this money had evidently aroused the cupielty of the hearties wretch and led to the commission of his fearful stime. Undorneath the rified bureau was found the axe employed by the assassin in his bloody work.

A physician who accompanied me made as examination of the money had evidently aroused the cupielty of the hearties wretch and led to the forchead, over the hearties wretch and led to t

CAMP MEETING AT SING SING.

Size Size, July 24, 1867.
camp meeting of the Methodist Episcopal Church lly held near this place, began on Monday last and continue until Friday, August 2, nearly one week

The grounds, lying one mile northeast of the silege, are beautifully located, commanding a glimpee They are held by an incorporated Board of Trustees, and have been fitted for the purpose at considerable ex-pense, being under-drained. In this same grove, be-Ings began, and have continued annually ever since. For many years they were in charge of Dr. Hangs, so well known to the Methodists of New York. Properly, this is the camp meeting of New York and Brooklyn. Business men of the Methodist Church, wanting a season of spiritual refreshment, as well as of physical pelaration and social enjoyment during the heated term, and not wishing to visit the popular resorts, pitch their tents here from year to year, and make the groves ring with the exultant anthems of the redeemed. A fortable them meathe at Saratega; for the reunion of brothers in Christ, this meeting of heart to heart and soul to coul mader the bine dome of the great cathedral, is the best test and enjoyment.

The meeting is in charge of Rev. W. H. Perris, pre-ing elder of the New York district. The first sermon apreached on Monday by Rev. Mr. Fields, of Morania, followed on Tuesday by sermons from Rev. Mr. chmond, of the Thirty-fourth street church; Rev. E. sith, of Poughkeepsie, and Rev. Mr. Reed, of Long land. Dr. Andrews, of Brooklyn, preached an excelsive ermon this morning, followed by one from Rev. J. Wyatt the afternoon. This is one of nature's perfect days, warm but breezy, d the azure glory of the Highlands, with the wonder-to blue beyond, the restle of the leaves and the "green lags growing," and the sound of voices singing in the lay, is indescribebly southing and peace giving. All lare is in harmony with that "peace which passes unstanding," and which is no doubt resting upon the sarts of many of the wormbippers. The attendance

Thus is the people of the surrounding country are not surely represented, but a very large attendance is ansaipsated by the close of the present and the beginning of next wask. Numerous bearding tents are spread though the principal avenue, and the price has been fixed by the floor at 50c, for breakfast and suppor, and 75c, by dinner, A detail of the Metropolitan Poince (this being within the district) is on the grounds, and the most perfect order provails. There are some three hundred sate in the grove, arranged in streets and avenues, in institution of the city, most of which are fly tents, with a correct order and nearly all the comforts of a fursiabed house. Thus, from year to year, the Methodist hurch goes on with its work.
